

HOW DISABILITY-FRIENDLY IS OUR CHURCH?

The following points can help a church to start discussing the inclusion of persons with disabilities.

1. Physical accessibility

Are all the buildings and facilities accessible for people with disabilities?
Including toilets for wheelchair users?

Tip: On the RampUp website at the 'Buildings for everyone' you will find guidelines to accessible buildings.

2. Worship services

In the worship services, can persons with disabilities easily take part in all aspects? For example:

- a. Sacraments like the Holy Communion: is it possible for all persons with disability to participate in the sacraments?
- b. Seating: is there a proper space for wheelchairs? Not to sit in the isle.
- c. Choir: are people with disabilities enabled to take part in the choir?
- d. Are ushers informed on how to assist people with disabilities in an appropriate way?

Tip: Ask persons with disability in your church what is their experience in the worship service.

3. Group activities in church

Can people with disabilities take part in all activities at church?

- a. Congregational committees?
- b. Religious education for adults and children: e.g. Bible study or Sunday school?
- c. Service in church life: ministry groups etc?
- d. Fellowship events: youth, camps, recreation and social activities?

Tip: Assess all the ministry activities: Are persons with disability enabled to also exercise their spiritual gifts in the church?

4. Approaches of awareness

It can be helpful for the church to develop the following approaches:

- a. Have plans in place for the inclusion of people with disabilities: Reflect annually on accessibility and inclusion
- b. Raise awareness of the inclusion of people with disabilities through the annual Disability Awareness Sunday on the last Sunday of August annually
- c. Build friendly relationships with people with disabilities
- d. Have someone in church taking responsibility to improve the inclusion of people with disabilities

Tip: Allow time and opportunity in the church program to address these issues.

5. Families touched by disability

Is there awareness of the needs of families that have someone with a disability?

Are these families visited regularly and help offered to them?

Tip: Find out who are the families in our church that are touched by disability?
